Bus traffic from Manila to the provinces increases dramatically at these times, with hundreds of extra buses taking people home to their families.

For the years 2008-10, the rate is now 6.1 deaths per 100,000 persons in Washington.

But let's "forget" this point for a second.

The lengthy responses from men who more or less call the poster a ball-buster (in 5000 words or less) are amusing reminders of exactly why this sort of post is necessary.
