in the following case study, the soles of the patient's feet were treated with topical doxepin 5 twice daily for four weeks.

If the blood tests and symptoms suggest celiac disease, the next step is typically an upper endoscopy with small bowel biopsy— the best way to confirm a diagnosis of celiac disease.