northern europe was the source of furs, skins, honey and slaves.

by minimising distress and agitation it is often possible to avoid the use of medicines altogether.

lyme and co-infection are not like infectious diseases that doctors currently recognise seems to be in a great dilemma, to some extent they seem to be in a state of identity crisis to avert