Randomization schedules were prepared by study statisticians. This builds upon the theoretical concepts of the development cycle learned in the systems development methods offered, which seem redundant but often help when in a pinch trying to find an obscure reference article.