feeling better about your physical self can translate into less emotional eating and help you lose up to three times more weight.

this probably works best in simple baked food such as cookies.